

VACCINATION IS NOW REQUIRED

Two New Cases Makes Order a Necessity.

Two new cases of small pox have appeared on the campus of Iowa State during the past week. In view of this the health officer and Dr. C. G. Tilden have thought the matter serious enough to require vaccination from everyone including all students and members of the college staff.

The statement has been made that everyone must have filled the vaccination requirement before Monday, April 22nd. The rule is that everyone does not have to be vaccinated, but that everyone must be able to show that the work has been done. A list of those who have not done this will be formed and everyone who has not met the requirement by that time will have to report to the President's office.
